Background

San Gervasio is located inside the wonderful frame of the Pisa Hills, 25 Km far from the Thyrranian Sea, surrounded by the pristine landscape of the Tuscan countryside. The whole estate consists of 400 hectares, of which 22 have been grown with vineyards, between 160 and 200 meters above sea level. The Mediterranean climate, dry and well ventilated, and the proximity of the sea make San Gervasio the perfect place for the cultivation of quality grapes.

Tasting Notes

Sangervasio Rosso is obtained with the second choice grape not selected for the top wines of the estate. This wine is youthful and bright with medium structure. Bright ruby red, with floral aromas of violet and wild berries, with an inviting mineral taste. Ideal for a daily consumption, together with meals but without forgetting a rich mineral taste which gets to a perfect combination with meat dishes. Hand harvested grapes and then fermented in cement vats at controlled temperatures.

It is aged for 10 months in concrete tanks and then at least 6 months in the bottle.
