Background

We feel it is particularly important that our wines reveal the diversity of the sub-soil, the vineyards and the blends of our estate. Each parcel lays claim to its own identity and we listen to that complexity and do all we can to let it sing in the wine we make from it. We are deeply concerned about the environment, and our viticulture is guided by nature. Our treatment of the land is designed give long term and sustainable biodiversity and to protect the micro-organisms which live in it. Jean-Mary Tarlant's deep experience allows him to showcase the individuality of his terroirs, whilst always respecting the environment. He protects his vineyards and their complex ecosystem using appropriate, well thought out and rational methods. His methodology can best be encapsulated as a search for an up-to-date style of French viticulture. He does this by using production techniques which allow the individuality of his terroirs to shine through while respecting our shared environment.

Tasting Notes

Attractive rose petal pink colour, nose fine with gentle fruit. This lively nature Rosé Tarlant gives atmosphere to parties and brings out the best in fruit desserts. Rose petal pink, tickling mousse. Expressive with an open bouquet giving scents of red fruit and spices. Generous and noble, with hints of red fruits, fig and prunes. A generous characterful champagne, it will go well with well flavoured poultry (duck and pheasant) or with red fruit desserts.
